During the morning, Field Artillery training continued, with exercises extending into the afternoon. A column of infantry was moving south, and a detachment of Royal Field Artillery entered the village of X.

At 8:30 a.m., 4th and 5th Divisions took part in a demonstration of fire support. The 5th Division opened fire on a ridge to the south, while the 4th Division attacked in the north. Both divisions suffered heavy casualties, with several officers and men killed.

In the afternoon, Field Artillery operated in support of the 4th Division's attack on the village of Y. The 5th Division continued to advance, pushing the enemy back towards the town of Z. However, the progress was slow due to heavy resistance.

SCHOOL MEETING.

The Secretary presented the following report:

"The attendance record for the last term shows an improvement in the number of regular attenders. The average attendance was 85%, which is a significant increase from previous terms. The improvement is attributed to the efforts of the teachers and the cooperation of the parents.

The committee has approved the purchase of new equipment for the library, which will provide additional resources for the students. The funds will be raised through a small increase in the school fees.

The school will be hosting a science fair next month, which is expected to be a great event. The students are encouraged to participate and showcase their projects.

The maintenance of the school premises is ongoing, with regular inspections to ensure safety and functionality.

The school board has authorized the hiring of a new teacher for the upcoming term, to accommodate the increasing student population.

Thank you for your continued support."

The Battalion was relieved by the 2nd British Reserve at 6 a.m. on 26th September. The Brigade was in support of the 5th Division, which was to attack at dawn on the 27th. The Battalion, under the command of Major J. F. Hennessey, occupied positions on the western outskirts of the village of Patience, south of the road to Ooty. The attack was made by the 5th Division at 5 a.m., and the Battalion moved forward in support of the sortie. The attack was successful, and the Battalion reached the objective without loss. The Brigade was then withdrawn, and the Battalion was relieved by the 2nd British Reserve at 6 a.m. on 26th September. The Battalion was then withdrawn to its starting positions, and the Brigade was relieved by the 2nd British Reserve at 6 a.m. on 26th September.
Reserve B. Coy. commanded by Lieut. A. Gardner, 2nd Battalion, 1st East Lancashire Regiment. B. Coy. was ordered to deploy along the line of the High Ground on the right, with the 2nd Bn. on their left and the 3rd Bn. to their right. The Coy., in accordance with their orders, was sent forward and concentrated on the high ground, where it was ordered to establish a line of little battery, with the Coy. in support, and then to advance to the first objective line. The Coy. finally arrived at the second objective line, having failed to take the first objective. During the attack, which was carried out with great gallantry, the Coy. suffered heavy casualties, but eventually succeeded in capturing the second objective. The Coy. then withdrew to their original position and prepared to resume the attack. The Coy. was then ordered to advance to the third objective, which was also captured without opposition. The Coy. then withdrew and prepared to resume the attack.
The page contains text regarding military operations and strategies. It appears to be a historical account or a report from a military context, possibly discussing tactics and engagements.

Excerpts from the text:

- "2 Platoons in CIVILIAN Trench..."
- "About 150 men, attack in lieu of 400..."
- "The enemy were holding..."
- "The enemy were advancing..."
- "The enemy were charging..."
- "The enemy were counter-attacking..."
- "The enemy were falling back..."
- "The enemy were not..."
- "The enemy were..."

The text seems to detail a situation where military forces are described as advancing, attacking, and counter-attacking, with various mentions of enemy movement and tactical maneuvers.

In the evening of the 24th the 1st Line of Bats

The primary task of the Battalion was to secure the position by acquiring and maintaining a line of outposts and establishing a line of communication connecting the right of the 2nd Division with the left of the 3rd Division. The advance was made in line and the situation was difficult with the enemy's front line well posted and reinforced with machine guns and barbed wire. The Battalion was engaged in heavy fighting for some hours and finally reached its objective after stubborn resistance.

APPENDIX V
I am much pleased to convey to you the appended.

In the opinion of the Committee, and the Board of the Government, the consideration given to the subject of the recommendation of the last report has been fully vindicated. The Board feel that the matter is of the utmost importance, and that the public will be much benefited by the establishment of a system of education which will not only be economical, but will also be calculated to promote the welfare of the community.

The recommendation of the Committee is fully in line with the course of action which has been adopted by the Board of Education, and which is believed to be the best means of advancing the cause of education in the country.

The Board of Education has been engaged in the consideration of the subject for some time, and has arrived at the conclusion that the establishment of a system of education which will not only be economical, but will also be calculated to promote the welfare of the community, is the best means of advancing the cause of education in the country.

The situation on the right was at once covered by our right flank at a distance of not over 500 yards. The enemy's left flank was covered by the 1st Brigade, under Maj. Gen. (as far as our front is concerned) and 1st Battalion, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th, were occupied in the capture of our enemy's positions. Our line was broken in the capture of our enemy's line, and the enemy's right flank was occupied by two weak columns on the right of our line.

The enemy's right flank was, as far as our front is concerned, covered by the 1st Brigade, under Maj. Gen. The enemy's left flank was covered by the 1st Brigade, under Maj. Gen.

At 11.30 a.m. a counter-attack was repulsed by our infantry in K6 and the enemy quickly withdrew.

By 1.30 p.m. it was still possible to work at the forward area without much shelling.

At 3 p.m. the enemy carried out a heavy concentration of shelling in the area where the infantry was preparing to move forward. The enemy continued to shell this area intermittently throughout the afternoon.

At 5 p.m. the enemy carried out a heavy counter-battery attack in the area of K6 and K7.

13 Officers, 347 Other Ranks, 12 Wounded Total 18

The number of prisoners captured is 10 (18).
Very little enemy movement was seen during the day. A few enemy positions were observed.

At intervals during the day a concentra- tion of shellfire was delivered. No casualties were inflicted on the enemy. No prisoners were captured. No concentration of the enemy was observed during the day.

At 12 noon and 1.00 p.m. our centre and left flank were subjected to 8 minute bombardments of the type described in last report. The positions of the enemy were confirmed during the day and 60 enemy were captured. The enemy was engaged in activities to the rear of the enemy.

Any other enemy targets were engaged during the day.
A few M.P. Zone calls were sent down.

For instance, the following units have been passed through corps columns:

- 44 R.I., 1st Div.
- 7th Arm., 1st Div.
- 1st Arm., 3rd Div.
- 2nd Arm., 2nd Div.

4. DISTRIBUTION OF THE FOLLOWING FORCES:

5. From preliminary statements it appears that the German attacks were to be expected. The 70th Gen. Div. was in support of the 7th Arm. The 79th Gen. Div. was in the rear of the 7th Arm. The 27th Gen. Div. and the 5th Gen. Div. on the right of the 7th Arm. were in the rear of the 70th Gen. Div. The 7th Arm. was in the rear of the 79th Gen. Div. The 1st Arm. was in the rear of the 27th Gen. Div. and the 5th Gen. Div.

Reconnaissance of the 1st Div. was carried out by the 2nd Arm. The 1st Arm. was in the rear of the 7th Arm. The 27th Gen. Div. and the 5th Gen. Div. were in the rear of the 70th Gen. Div. The 79th Gen. Div. was in the rear of the 7th Arm. The 1st Arm. was in the rear of the 27th Gen. Div. and the 5th Gen. Div.
In close support and in reserve, and orders to countertactics of the several prisoners, and orders to countermine at the 24th of 25th, the main attack was expected on.

Overhead telephone conversations confirmed that tanks had been set up.

1916.
On the following day the Battalion moved to new billets, and in the afternoon the commanding officer held a small party of men, one from each section, to see how the enemy were going. The Battalion remained in their billets until the 15th December. On the 16th December we had to relieve another Battalion until the 20th. Under the terms of the armistice the Peace was signed, and the British Army was held until the 11th hour on the 11th day of November.
The canal bank being about 50 feet wide whereas the lock itself was 70 feet wide and the lock 20 feet long.

As it was impossible to locate surveys on either side of the lock and lock gates were found to be too small to obstruct the advance of the ground plans and sketches were made of the ground where the lock and lock gates were found.

Clearing a way in the lock and lock gates was found to be impossible and any marked tactical feature should be avoided. The lock and lock gates were found to be too small to obstruct the advance of the ground plans and sketches were made of the ground where the lock and lock gates were found.

Additional orders issued in detail:

At 7.00 hours on 11th November the 1st Battalion started to march to Assembly Positions behind Battalion was formed up in Assembly Positions behind 200 to 400 yards from the Look as above in detail.
At this time, waves of infantry were approaching the bridge. The Sussex Regiment had already crossed, followed by other units. Enemy soldiers held up by crossfire from the bridge and nearby positions were engaged in a fierce battle. The bridge was a crucial point, and its capture was essential for the advance of the forces.

As the waves of infantry continued to approach, it became clear that the bridge had to be secured at all costs. The men fought bravely, despite being outnumbered and under attack. The smoke of battle filled the air, and the sound of gunfire was constant. The bridge was eventually secured, and the advance continued.

The fight was long and hard, but the men pressed on, determined to reach their objectives. The final push was made, and the bridge was successfully captured. The success of this operation proved the strength and determination of the forces involved.
The situation however, proved to be that the Battalion was ordered to continue its advance and take the ridge beyond the front line of trenches. The 1st Platoon of the Loyal North Lancashire Regiment, which was leading the advance, was ordered to continue its advance and take the ridge beyond the front line of trenches.

The 1st Platoon of the Loyal North Lancashire Regiment, which was leading the advance, was ordered to continue its advance and take the ridge beyond the front line of trenches.

The 1st Platoon of the Loyal North Lancashire Regiment, which was leading the advance, was ordered to continue its advance and take the ridge beyond the front line of trenches.

The 1st Platoon of the Loyal North Lancashire Regiment, which was leading the advance, was ordered to continue its advance and take the ridge beyond the front line of trenches.
The bridges at the Northern Assembly point were -
4 Subdiary 4 footbridges.

Assault bridges for the lock with special 33 ft. long and are designated
First-wave footbridges.

The 35тон-0 footbridges.

(a) Subdiary (b) footbridges.

(b) Subdiary (c) footbridges.

The 35odon (c) footbridges.

The bridges at the Southern Assembly point were -
4 Subdiary 4 footbridges.

i.e. 3 for Lock No. 1 of Lock.

For Lock No. 2.
Up to this time the Southern parties, with the exception of Captain RHINO who had been severely wounded, had only had 2 or 3 casualties.

In the Northern group - the leading infantry parties had just reached the Canal bank, suffering several casualties. The bridge parties of this group consisting of the subsidiary (W) and first-wave bridges under Lt. HILLSIDE 40th Fd. Co. and the subsidiary (E) bridges under Lt. KELLY of the same unit, had moved forward punctually at zero; they encountered a small stream which Lt. HILLSIDE bridged with two of the subsidiary (W) bridges to allow the passage of the first-wave bridges. The first of the latter under Corp. HOW had crossed, and the second was on the point of doing so, when an enemy shell put out of action Lt. KELLY, his section Sergeant, and the whole of the team of this second bridge, except one man. The two remaining subsidiary (W) bridges, under 2/Corp. WHART, followed by Corp. HOW'S first-wave bridge moved forward; one of the subsidiary (W) bridges teams suffered casualties and had to stop, but the remaining subsidiary (W) bridge and the first-wave bridge reached the stream immediately West of the Lock.

0550. It was evident that owing to the obstructions such as roots, fallen trees and barbed wire, it would not be possible to find places where two of the subsidiary (W) bridges could span the stream (immediately West of the Lock) side by side, and orders were sent for the supplementary bridges to come forward at once.

Examination showed that the far bank South of the ruined house was covered with barbed wire, whereas the bank north of this point was free from it, and also afforded a suitable site for placing two supplementary bridges side by side; the Lock surface moreover above this point was free from debris. This site was selected and the passage eventually took place here.

0553. The first two subsidiary (W) bridges of the Norther group arrived at the stream immediately West of the Lock while the above examination was going on and were placed over the stream by men wading up to their waists; the remaining two subsidiary (W) bridges of this group, arriving shortly after, were used in construction in a V-form to make a single crossing, each infantry of whom some scrambled over the stream and over the wire and some crossed the bridges, advanced over the wire and up the bank, and silenced the enemy post in the ruined house West of the Lock, which up to this time has caused much trouble and some casualties by bombs.

0555. About this time the sole remaining subsidiary (W) bridge of the Northern party arrived at this stream and being placed across it on to a tree, enabled the leading first-wave bridge of the Southern group to be dragged across and bridge this stream.

0605. By means of these bridges the sole remaining first-wave footbridge of the Northern group was taken across this stream and on to the Lock followed closely by the other first-wave bridge of the Southern group.
The Transport Officer of 2nd Royal Sussex

The first steel joist for the Tank Bridge arrived at the lock. All transport bridges were completed on the 29th, including anchors, and the pack animals began to pass over them. The pack transport bridges were then broken down and the lock and its vicinity were kept clear of heavy shallops.

0950: Capt. Wood, Lt. Austen, and Lt. of 1st Hussars, accompanied by some of the staff, went to the lock. The lock was in a view to removing the latter Company with the first steel joist for the Tank Bridge. The lock and its vicinity were then kept clear of heavy shallops.

SPECIAL ORDER OF THE DAY

5th November, 1918.

Major-General W. F. BERNARD, O.B., G.C.M.G., D.S.O.,

Commanding 1st Division.

The task that the Division was called to perform yesterday was the most arduous and presses organisation in all branches of the Army, and precise timing and co-operation were vital. The Division was held in readiness to perform its task, and the work of the engineers and the infantry was closely co-ordinated.

The Division has every reason to be proud of its record, and they could not have done more than they have done, under the circumstances. The Division has the support of the infantry and the engineers, and they have every reason to be proud of their record. The Division is composed of the most able soldiers, and they have every reason to be proud of their record.

ADJUTANT AND SUGGESTION COMMITTEE

I. M. O. M.

In the intended communication please note that the terms 'enemy' and 'hostile' are to be used in the sense of 'enemy' and 'hostile' according to the general usage of the Committee, and not those of the army.
1. A guard or Picket will be placed near the following points on the German Frontier:

- The following instructions are to be observed:

  - At the start of the attack, all enemy forces, including officers and men, will be treated with the utmost respect.
  - The Army will not enter German territory without express permission.
  - All enemy property will be treated with the utmost respect.
  - The Army will not interfere with the civilian population.

Dec 1916

- The following authority were granted:
  - J. F. Child, M.C.
  - R. H. B. M.
  - C. G. S.

Handwritten notes indicate that the document contains instructions for military operations during World War I, particularly regarding the treatment of German civilians and the respect to be shown to them. The text emphasizes the importance of not entering German territory without permission and of treating all enemy forces with the utmost respect.

SPECIAL ORDER OF THE DAY
by
Brigadier General G. C. KELLY, D.S.O.
Commanding 2nd Infantry Brigade.

On relinquishing command of the 2nd Infantry Brigade, I wish to place on record my very deep and lasting appreciation of the services rendered by all ranks during my tenure of Command.

To my Staff I wish to tender my most grateful thanks for their zeal and for their loyalty at all times during the past year.

To my Commanding Officers I feel a debt of gratitude which is beyond words to express, for their magnificent services which have been such a potent factor in maintaining and increasing the traditions of the 2nd Brigade.

To the Battalion Staffs I wish to record my great appreciation of their strenuous work, whether of a Military or administrative nature, without which the high standard of efficiency of the units could not have been achieved.

To the Company Commanders and other Officers, to the Warrant Officers, Non-commissioned Officers and men, of the whole Brigade, I tender my deepest thanks for the manner in which they have always carried out the tasks I have set them, for their SIR,

My Command.

I have been generously presented to you with the opportunity to serve your Command and under your Command's guidance and watchful eye, I have endeavored to execute my duties to the best of my ability. I have been honored to serve under your Command and your guidance has been a constant source of motivation and inspiration.

I am deeply grateful for the opportunity to serve under your Command and for the trust placed in me. I wish to express my deepest gratitude for their service and dedication.

Yours sincerely,
