"You know how sadly this day has been desecrated by agriculture and horticulture, and how it has been desecrated by unnecessary work of all kinds," said the Rev. J. J. Barraclough at the annual meeting of the Worthing auxiliary of the Lord's Day Observance Society, "and I believe that this Sabbath desecration is one of those national sins for which God is now chastising us. . . We cannot break God's law without suffering for it sooner or later." The speaker, who has been a member of the committee of the Society for a quarter of a century, and the Rev. C. J. Hollis, who was in the chair, expressed satisfaction that the Sunday cinemas had been closed. A resolution was passed, on the proposition of Pastor Henman, deploring the continuance of Sunday trading, Sunday newspapers, and Sunday amusements.
