FINE WORK BY SUSSEX LADS.

In a letter to Haywards Heath, where he resides in peace-time, Pte. B. Cook, Royal Sussex Regt., E.B.F., speaks of the fine work done by the lads of our county regiment. "We have been in action again," he writes, "and once more have driven the Turks back and shown them which is the superior of the two forces. We have advanced wonderfully all along the front, our troops doing splendid work everywhere. I am proud to say I have been awarded the Military Medal for work in the field on Sunday, November 4—the first engagement of the two we took part in. Words cannot express my admiration of the gallant way in which the officers and men of our regiment went into action, and not only captured, but held and consolidated the position. It was by no means an easy task, and those of us who came through it all were very lucky. A splendid barrage was put up by our artillery, and we advanced under it, there being short intervals for the barrage to lift as we advanced. Everything was capitally organised and carried out."
