AT ST. JAMES'S CINEMA.

The British Army.

First Instalment of a Fine Descriptive Film.

THE Soldiers of the King are gaining the admiration of the people by their gallant deeds at the present time, and their many acts in this great European struggle will live long in the history of the Nation.

To get a real glimpse of the life of Tommy Atkins readers can be cordially recommended to pay a visit to St. James's Hall, where the first instalment of a film descriptive of the British Army is being shown.

This film is the opening chapter of a new series which has been taken by permission of the War Office, and the pictures are now being shown through the enterprize of Mr. Jack Andrews, the Manager of the Cinema, who has booked the exclusive rights for the town and district.

The initial film depicts how Tommy Atkins is fed, and the fact is stated on the screen that no fewer than thirty thousand loaves of bread are baked daily at Aldershot when the portion of the Army quartered there is in Barracks.

The field equipment for looking after Tommy when on manoeuvres and in such times as we are passing through now are also shown in detail, and the film concludes with a representation of the Foot Guards being drilled. The series promises to be a most excellent one, and will doubtless gain many patrons for Mr. Andrews.

The Warwick "Chronicle" is quite up-to-date. The many scenes in London during the Recruiting For Lord Kitchener's Army, including the swearing-in at the Tower by the Lord Mayor of London, come in for a good deal of attention; whilst there is also a representation of the arrival of German prisoners at Ostend.

The other portions of Mr. Andrews' programme will be found to be most interesting. On the humorous side there is a film entitled "A Film Johnnie," and this must be written down as one of the very best subjects of this kind ever seen locally.
